Information for Pothole Claimants

Although you may have hit a pothole on a road maintained by Island Roads, it does not mean you are entitled to compensation automatically.

Potholes can break out very quickly and it is simply not possible for Island Roads to check every road on the Isle of Wight every day for potholes.

The law recognises this and therefore the legal requirement for Island Roads is to check each road for defects monthly, quarterly or annually depending on the type of road and its usage.

Therefore if we have inspected the road within the timescale, and the pothole was not present on the date of inspection then we have complied with the law.

If a pothole has broken out since this inspection, it does not mean Island Roads is negligent.

Please bear this in mind when making a claim.
